CATTLE WANTED TO STOCK RANGE

Owners of Land in South Dakota and Nebraska Seeking Stock—Letter Received in Ogden From Gordon, Nebraska, Inquiring About the Cattle Being Shipped Into This District From California

As a result of the efforts of the forest service to provide range for cattle and sheep belonging to the people living in the drought-stricken districts of California, a letter has been received at the Ogden forest service headquarters from a resident of Gordon, Neb., informing the district forester that on account of heavy losses incurred during a blizzard which swept over the middle west on March 14 the people of South Dakota and Nebraska would be glad to secure stock to replenish their depleted herds.

According to this correspondent, there was a loss of 50 per cent during the blizzard among cattle which were customarily grazed on the Pine Ridge Indian reservation in South Dakota. Owing to the general shortage of cattle throughout the middle west, due largely to the losses this winter, farmers and stockmen living in Nebraska and South Dakota will be unable to stock the ranges on the Pine Ridge reservation this season unless cattle from the western states can be secured.

This situation has created a strong demand for cattle from California and other western states, and should prove a source of considerable relief to people living in the localities where a shortage of range exists.

Since the prairie pastures in the middle west are convenient to market centers, it would, no doubt, prove profitable for shippers to utilize these ranges with stock which will later be put on the market.

A report of the situation in South Dakota and Nebraska has been transmitted to the district forester at San Francisco, with the suggestion that it be brought to the attention of the California stockmen who have been driven from their home ranges by drought and forced to seek grazing grounds elsewhere.

In the opinion of Homer E. Fenn, in charge of the grazing department, it is quite likely the California will be pleased to learn of conditions in the middle west, and will no doubt take advantage of the opportunities offered to secure relief from the serious situation in their own state.

DEPUTIES ARE TO BE NAMED BY DEVINE

Authority in the sheriff's office was re-established this morning when Sheriff Thomas A. Devine took hold and the deputies under the late Sheriff Harrison's administration appeared for duty. For three days the office was at a standstill insofar as legal operations were concerned and a serious question arose as to whether the waiting for the action of the county commissioners would not bring about legal entanglements that might cause future trouble by way of litigation. It is understood that J. L. Hobson will take the place of Sheriff Devine as chief deputy. George Leatham, J. G. Crompton, Charles Ellsworth and Walter Richey, the other deputies, are to hold their former positions on the force. There is a vacancy in the office now, which will not be filled for a number of days, as Sheriff Devine says there is no immediate necessity for another deputy.

Neither court is in session this week and it may be the latter part of this month before Judge Harris reopens court, making it possible for the batties of the two divisions to attend to office matters. Sheriff Devine stated this morning that he had not decided on a man for the place made vacant by his promotion and that he would take his time in selecting a deputy. He had high regard for Sheriff Harrison and says that he will endeavor to the best of his ability to carry out the policies of his predecessor. The old men will be retained and the work of the office will be taken up where the late sheriff left off.

While Sheriff Devine would give no information as to whom he might offer the vacant place in the office, it is currently reported today that Curtis Allison has been slated for the position. Mr. Allison would attend to the clerical work of the office and aid other deputies when necessity required. It is said that the young man is well qualified for the position.

There are only a few prisoners in the county jail, none being of a notorious character. The list this morning disclosed the following:

Maggie Jones, a colored girl, waiting trial for the theft of money from a stranger who has departed the country. Her case should have been tried this week, but could not be on account of the illness of Judge Harris. E. T. Clark and J. B. Hinckley, serving time under sentence for theft and obtaining money under false pretenses. Bud Miller, waiting trial for burglary.

William Burk, awaiting sentence for burglary. F. B. Lewis, held for the United States officers on the charge of white slavery.

H. Harrison, Carl Rosin and Otho Athcraft, indicted. This morning Charles Vanatta was released from custody. He had been in jail a few weeks because of his mental condition, but has sufficiently recovered to be released. He is the man who jumped through a car window when his train from the west entered the depot.

A. C. McCain of the operation department of the forest service returned last evening from the Yellowstone Park where he went recently to confer with park officers and representatives from forest districts 1, and 2, relative to fighting fires in that region.

A tentative arrangement was entered into by which more effective fire fighting may be done near the park this season and by which duplication of work will be avoided.

CITY BONDS HAVE BEEN CARED FOR

Ogden State Bank Stood Ready to Protect the Credit of Ogden in Case Grant & Company Failed to Take Up $100,000 Issue of Twenty Years Ago—Strong Local Institutions Source of Gratification.

Much to the gratification of Mayor Fell and the other members of the city board of commissioners, the incident connected with the refunding of the $100,000 city bonds has been closed. The bond company of New York wired yesterday afternoon that it would take up the bonds as agreed upon some time ago. For a time it looked as though the credit of the city might be impaired through the failure of the Grant company to comply with its agreement with the city regarding the deal and the mayor did some pretty quick work to have the bonds of the city protected when they came due yesterday.

Mr. Fell states that the commissioners are pleased to know that local money was preferred to rescue the city from embarrassment. Especial credit is due the Ogden State bank for its proposal to pay the bonds on a moment's notice. The bank wired its New York correspondent to pay the bonds when they came due if the Grant company failed to take them and charge the Ogden State bank account with the $100,000. "It shows to me," said the mayor this morning, "that the banks in Ogden are strong institutions and that they are loyal to the city. It is well for the city to know that big interests here are ready to come to the rescue of the municipality when needed."

Ogden's Credit Protected. H. C. Bigelow, president of the Ogden State bank, when asked by a Standard reporter for information about the transaction of yesterday in New York City, relating to the $100,000 bond issue, said:

"It seems that an issue of twenty year improvement bonds of 1893 fell due yesterday. The city commissioners took the matter in hand in simple manner, advertised and sold to the highest bidder $100,000 of refunding bonds, with which to take up the ones mentioned above. But, as the time drew near, they gathered from Grant & Company, to whom the bonds had been awarded, that the company might not take the bonds, raising technical points at about the last moment.

"The commissioners realized, as well as everyone else, that if Ogden City should default in the bonds maturing, it would find its way into the financial and bond journals, an explanation might not follow and serious damage to Ogden City's credit would result. You know that many eastern states have bank commissioners to pass upon securities that the saving banks may hold, and, as a rule, a county or municipality that has defaulted in either principal or interest within five years will not be accepted for savings banks. This would result in lower prices for Ogden City bonds in the future as many of them are purchased for investments by savings banks.

"We wired our New York correspondent to receive and pay for the $100,000 bonds maturing yesterday, charging our account with the amount providing that at the close of business yesterday Grant & Company had not taken up the refunding bonds, which, if they had done, would provide money to redeem the old ones.

"During the day we received a wire saying that Grant and Company had received and paid for $55,000, all bonds presented up to that time, but further than that we are not advised. It was agreed that if we obtained the bonds, half of them would be turned over to the First National bank here."
